

What's the latest with Equifax?

September 7, 2017, the public was made known about a cybersecurity incident that caused a breach in the Equifax database. A roughly estimated 143 million consumers' information was exposed by this breach. Through the years, we've become inundated with different breaches from companies we hold with high regards. Equifax being one of them. As consumers we should always be aware of our credit information and who may or may not be trying to contact us.

Along, with any other scam or fraudulent activity please do NOT give out your personal information to anyone without knowing exactly who you are speaking with.

A letter from Allied Federal Credit Union

The links below take you to third party links that Allied FCU does not provide, and is not responsible for, the product, service, or overall website content available on third-party sites. Allied FCU does not represent either you or the third-party site in any transaction you enter into with the third-party site.

Allied FCU's privacy and security policies do not apply to linked websites. You should consult the privacy disclosures and security policies on each third-party site for further information. Third-party websites may provide less security than Allied FCU's website.

What to do:

<https://www.consumer.ftc.gov/blog/2017/09/equifax-data-breach-what-do>
Gressin, Seena (2017, September 8). The Equifax Data Breach: What to Do.

It's a SCAM, Equifax is NOT calling you:

<https://www.consumer.ftc.gov/blog/2017/09/equifax-isnt-calling>
Schifferle, Lisa Weintraub (2017, September 14). Equifax isn't calling.